'Move That Bus' Day is Sunday in Port Deposit; Clark Turner Signature Homes Invites Community for Final Day of 'Extreme Makeover: Home Edition' Event

PORT DEPOSIT, Md. (October 19, 2007) – Clark Turner Signature Homes today announced that the construction of the Luther Family home and therapeutic riding facility in Port Deposit, Md. is nearing completion and the community is invited to participate in “Move That Bus” day on Sunday afternoon, the final day of the week-long construction for ABC’s “Extreme Makeover: Home Edition.”

Just one week ago, the lives of the Luther family, who live on a farm in pastoral Cecil County, Maryland, were forever changed when they heard design team leader Ty Pennington’s famous “good morning” wake-up call. While Renee Luther and her two children, Alex and Ellie, vacationed in Italy this week, Clark Turner Signature Homes, along with Ty Pennington and fellow designers Paige Hemmis, Rib Hillis, Ed Sanders and Eduardo Xol, will have completed the massive project with the help of more than 1,500 contractor and trade people volunteers.

To participate in Sunday’s “reveal,” residents should arrive at the home on Rock Run Road in Port Deposit, Md. at least two hours prior to the anticipated 2 p.m. arrival of the family. For directions, shuttle information and additional details, visit www.CTextremedream.com.
